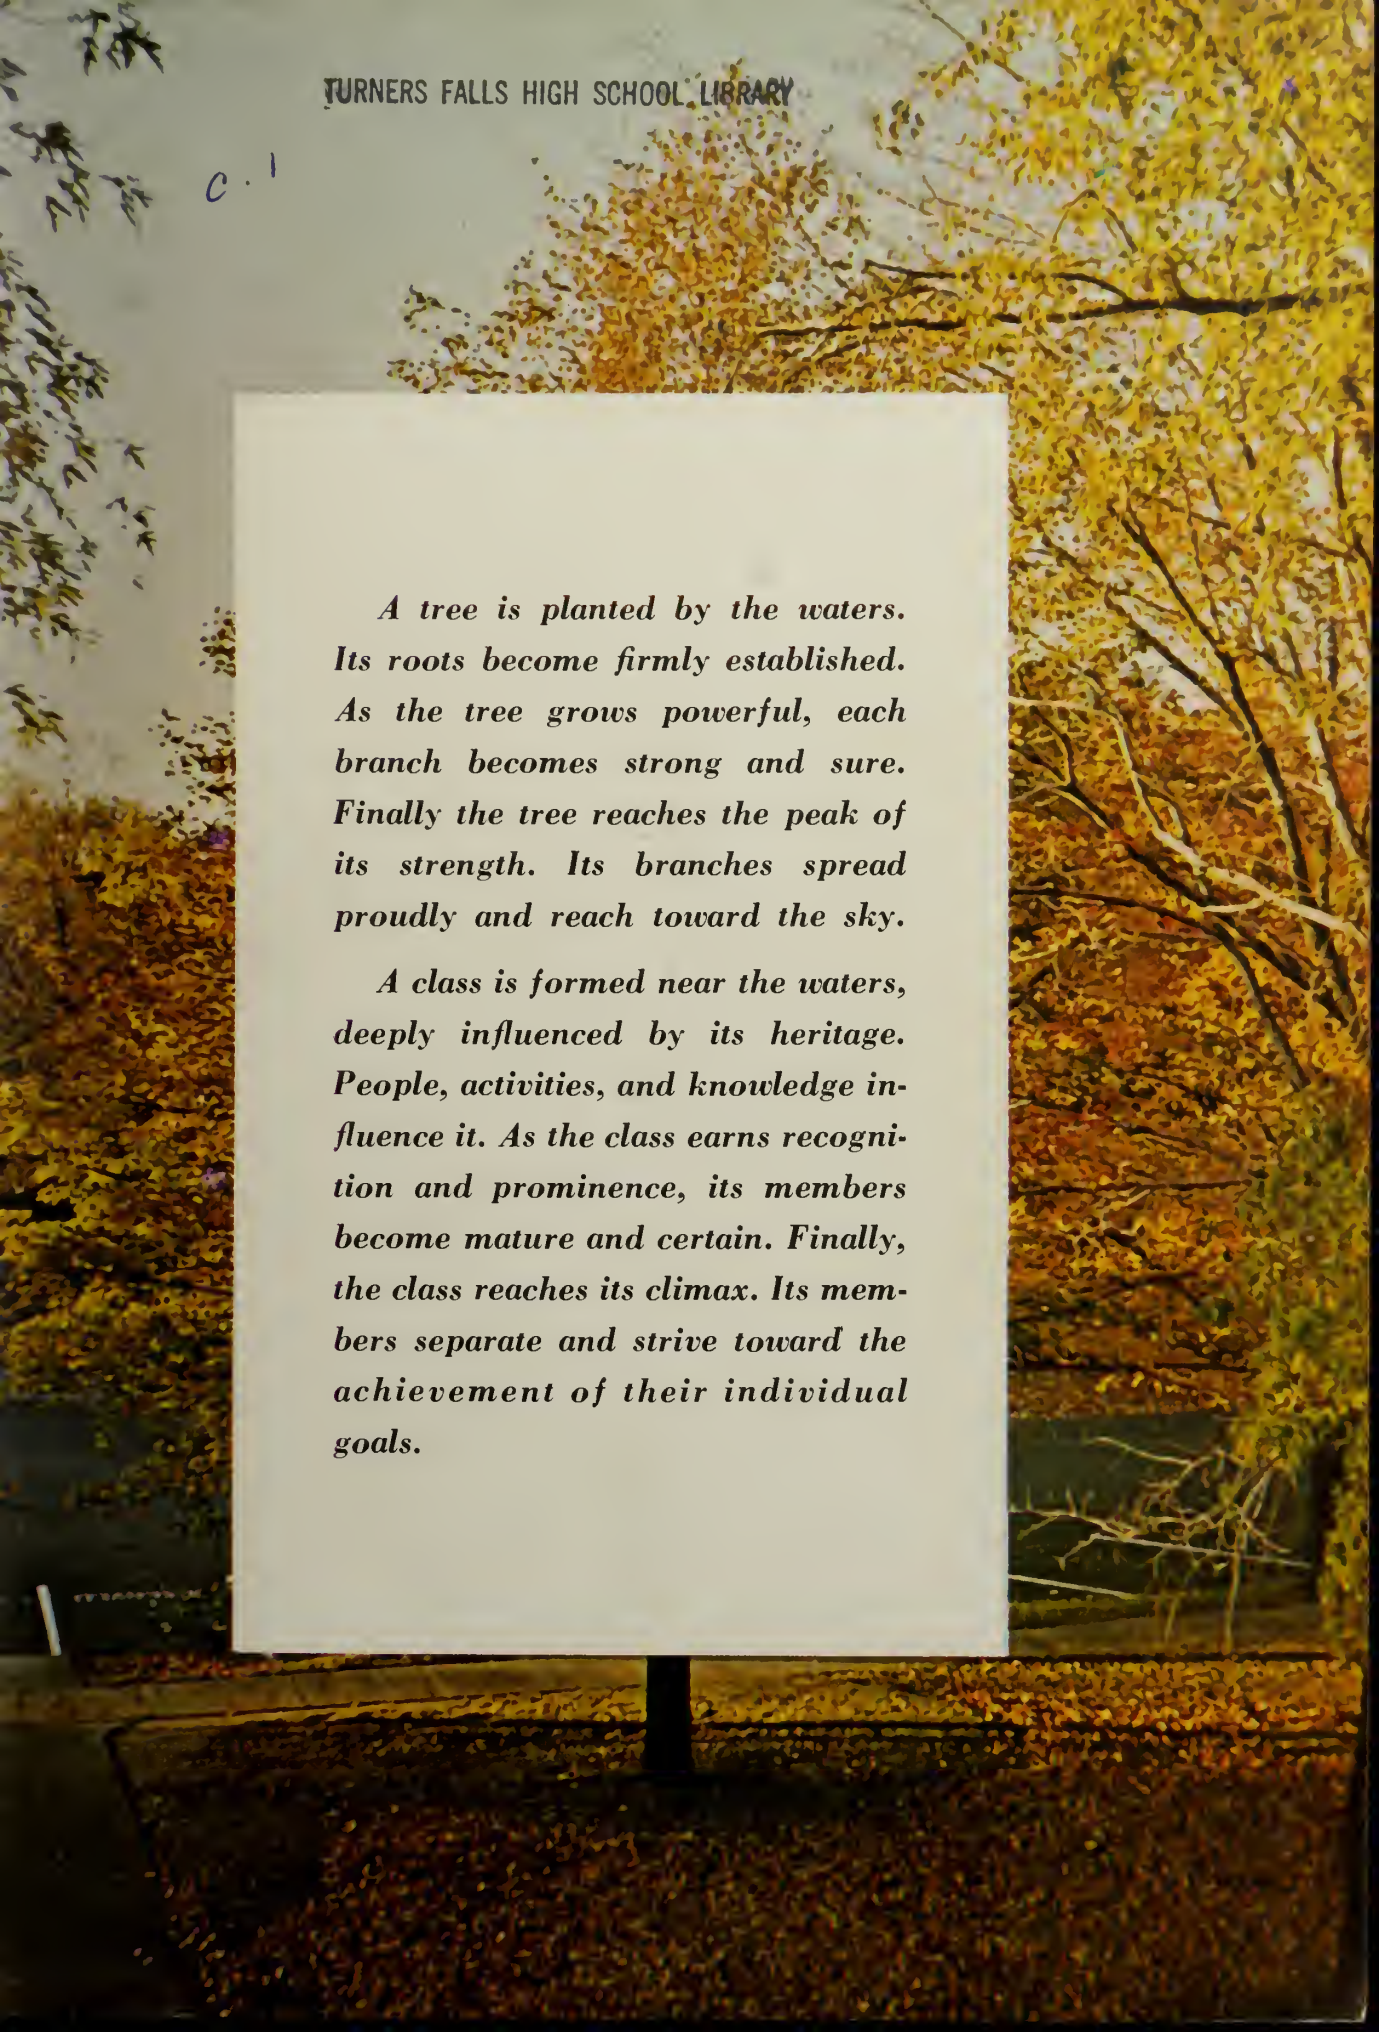
TURNERS FALLS HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY

C. 1



A tree is planted by the waters. Its roots become firmly established. As the tree grows powerful, each branch becomes strong and sure. Finally the tree reaches the peak of its strength. Its branches spread proudly and reach toward the sky.

A class is formed near the waters, deeply influenced by its heritage. People, activities, and knowledge influence it. As the class earns recognition and prominence, its members become mature and certain. Finally, the class reaches its climax. Its members separate and strive toward the achievement of their individual goals.

CLASS of 1966

T.F.H.S.

R. Thibodeau

MR. JOHN F. BASSETT

The light in the forest. A shaft, piercing the dark uncertainty of our youth and guiding our steps toward greatness. An example to imitate, to respect, to admire. An application of inexhaustible spirit to the achievement of every goal. A reliable friend, a loyal supporter, an infallible leader; but most of all, a man.

We met him as Freshmen, and through the years a strong bond has grown between us. His hearty sense of humor accented by a broad grin made every trial seem easier. With a strong sense of responsibility, he inspired us to make the most of every opportunity, never to give up when the going got rough. As our friendship grew, so did our respect and admiration for this man who greatly influenced our lives. The impression which he left on the Class of '66 can never be dulled by time. He has led us to the climax of our high school career.

And so, with pride in our hearts, the Class of '66 has the honor of dedicating this yearbook to you, Mr. Bassett.

MR. ARTHUR E. BURKE

The strength of a tree depends on its roots. With the help of our Superintendent, our roots have grown sturdy and staunch. He was an example to follow, a person to respect. Although he was seldom seen, his presence was always felt. He continually strove to help us and to benefit Turners Falls High School. We salute you, Mr. Burke.

MR. WILLIAM A. COOK

When we entered the halls of TFHS as Seniors, we saw a change. This change was a man—short in stature but tall in ideals. He was always willing to serve, to listen, to advise. We admired his sincerity, integrity, responsibility, and most of all his understanding. He upheld tradition yet encouraged progress. He played a very important role in shaping our lives. For your friendship and understanding, we thank you, Mr. Cook.

MR. ROBERT L. PLAISTED

One man has carved his name distinctly in our past. He has guided us through uncertainty, fear, and awkwardness. He has given us assurance, understanding, and poise. He has served as a teacher, an advisor, a friend. He has helped us to gain strength, to earn prominence, to achieve our highest goals. To you we are deeply indebted, our Class Advisor, Mr. Plaisted.

MR. GEORGE F. WRIGHTSON

In our forest of knowledge, one man stands sharply silhouetted against the horizon. To the Class of '66 he represents one of the most influential factors in our lives. We are deeply indebted to him for his encouragement as a respected counsellor and leader. We are proud to call him our friend. He has secured a position of prominence in Turners Falls High School history, and a place of deepest regard in our hearts. We will long remember him as one of the most important personages in our high school career. His high ideals and principles have influenced us to reach still higher toward the achievement of our goals. With pride, the Class of '66 dedicates this page to Mr. George Wrightson.

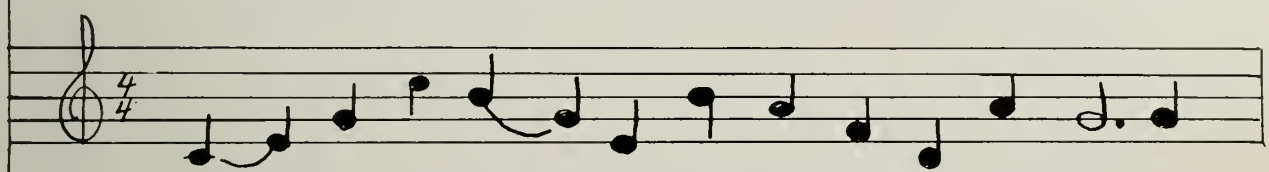
CLASS SONG

(Music by Leslie Sheridan - Words by Mary Mackin)



Stand - ing as sap - lings in the forest of life. The -fraid unsure we wait to try. Today our fate is cast. We

Product of past ef - forts we've weathered storm and strife. We carry future hopes with us yet can't forget the past. These won't forget the helping hands of those who came before. But years were good, our faith is strong, our friendships firmly based. This

Now we stand impatiently on the threshold of life's door. A
Phase of life we bid fare - well the future now to face.

THE WAY IT WAS

As young saplings we entered the halls of TFHS. We were insecure, uncertain, yet eager to become a part of this forest of knowledge. Quickly we were made to feel at ease in our new environment as we were officially welcomed by the Seniors at the annual Freshman-Senior Reception. Soon we began to unite to form a sturdy foundation upon which our tree could grow. Who will ever forget those first few days as we searched through the corridors for the right room always keeping an alert eye open for that first floor elevator. (We never did find it!!) Eagerly we joined in what limited school activities we could and how proud we were to see many of our class members in the cast of Annie Get Your Gun. All too fast the days and months passed by, and soon we were no longer the shy, bewildered Freshmen, but the alert, sophisticated Sophomores.

As Sophomores, our growth progressed as we elected our class officers. Robert Parker was elected President; Dennis Couture, Vice President; Sharon Tatakis, Secretary; Patricia Milkey, Treasurer; Fay O'Riley, Historian. Immediately after this we chose our class rings, our symbols of belonging. How proud we were to display them. We were anxious to show our abilities, and show them we did. Why our first function as a class, the Sophomore Social can only be considered as a complete success???

The roots of our tree were furthered strengthened as, in our Junior year, we again elected class officers: Bob Parker, President; Dennis Couture, Vice President; Sharon Tatakis, Secretary; Marcia Halladay, Treasurer; Fay O'Riley, Historian. As Juniors, we were conscious of our new status and united we started to prepare ourselves for what lay ahead. The fact that it was the Golden Anniversary of the annual Junior Prize Speaking Contest inspired us to make a good presentation.

When the curtain opened that night of April 30, the eight nervous classmates gave a dramatic rendition. Our class proved to be quite talented and a choice of winners was difficult. Judi Kruzlic received top honors for her interpretation of "King Lear" by William Shakespeare. "A Work of Art" by Anton Chekov rendered by Stewart Faulkner won second place. Third place went to Mary Ellen Mackin for her highly dramatic presentation of "Was it a Dream?" by Guy de Maupassant. Other participants were: Patricia Milkey, Brian Marsh, David Bordeaux, Marcia Halladay, and Lawrence Crochier.

For months our class prepared itself for our Junior Prom. Our hard work and dedication paid off, however, when on May 14, a once bare and cavernous gymnasium was turned into a gay, picturesque dance hall. A 14 foot flower covered windmill, complete with rotating blades, was the focal point of a scene in Holland.

All too soon it was over. The last notes of the final waltz had faded into the night and all that remains of that wonderful evening are a few crushed flowers, perhaps a dance program and many wonderful memories.

With the announcement of the new Netop and Yearbook staff our class issued the last edition of this year's Netop. Already we were beginning to feel like the "High and Mighty" Seniors. Thus the outstanding events of our Junior year passed by and we eagerly looked forward to summer vacation when we would have a chance to catch our breaths.

How happily we had departed, knowing that when we returned we as Seniors would be in power. But would our dreams come true? News of the resignation of Principal Wrightson came as a shock to most. The whole school felt a deep sense of loss. As Seniors we looked with uncertainty at the man who would replace him. We realized that he would be different from Mr. Wrightson but just how, we weren't sure. At our first assembly, as he stood nervously on the stage, we got our first in sight into his personality. "I graduated from Greenfield," she said, "but it took me a few years to make the big time!" We had a friend, and Mr. Cook quickly won the respect and admiration of us all.

We began our Senior year by welcoming in the Freshmen with the usual Freshmen Reception. We soon discovered we were a class with great ambitions. We had pride and showed it as we expressed ourselves freely in the pages of our newspaper, Netop; in our Teen Scene reports; in Alter Ego; and in our yearbook.

Who will ever forget the date, November 25, 1965: the time, between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.; the place, Sheff Field; the occasion, the 39th annual Thanksgiving Day clash; the outcome—VICTORY for TURNERS, the first in 15 years. Yes, fifteen years of tears and disappointments had finally come to an end as we dramatically and decisively beat Greenfield, 28-14, in a terrific team effort.

That evening St. Kazimier's hall was filled with excited students and a swinging impromptu victory dance was held. Everyone was thrilled by the Turkey-Day victory but for the Seniors it was an extra special event for it was OUR YEAR.

Senior Play was another success credited to our class. The play that was chosen was, "High Cockalorum." The actors and the actresses spent many hours at rehearsals. These many hours were filled with humor, encouragement, and sometimes depression; but always filled with the mystery and the excitement of life itself. From this experience was gained a greater cognizance of human nature, and knowledge of having truly accomplished something long to be remembered.

All to soon the years have slipped through our fingers. We have grown strong and straight, and now our branches reach out to the outside world. We drop like leaves, each floating in his own direction, wary of what lies ahead.

IVY POEM

To others you speak not a word,
But to us you unfold
The hidden secrets
That betray your silent leaves.

You are the sole heir
To bygone days,
And now—all of Us that stays.

From this sanctuary we must go,
But our legacy we leave to grow;
Live on lovely vine—
Burgeon forth and climb.

JUNIOR PROM

The date was May 14. The parking lot was crowded and the gym corridor was filled with nervous chatter as the traditional Grand March commenced.

The girls, each beautiful in a soft gown, and their escorts, somewhat unaccustomed to their formal evening attire, seemed awestricken at the transformation of the gym. A 14-foot flower-covered windmill, complete with rotating blades, was the focal point of a scene in Holland—our theme.

The Grand March wound through the tulips and carnations. Soon the floor was a mass of whirling colors, as the couples danced to favorite tunes played by Dick Perry's orchestra.

All too soon it was over. The last notes of the final waltz had faded away into the night.

RIDERS TO THE SEA

The scene of this Columbus Day play, written by John Synge, was a simple fisherman's cottage. Sadly, it was not a home. It had been when Murya's (Pat Milkey) family was safe and Cathleen (Judi Kruzlic) and Nora (Mary Mackin) shared six fine, healthy brothers. The sea beckoned the last man of this dwindling family to his end. Bartley (Jerry Sullivan) could not be swayed by the mournful pleading of his bewailing mother, and left. "The blessing of God be with you," was her resentful adieu. Peace came to her at the highest price, the death of Bartley, her only remaining son. Joined by her neighbors, Marsha Halladay, Richard Gates, Linda Saulnier, William Garrand, and Robert Judd, she mourned his death.

THE GREAT CHOICE

Fred Eastman is the author of this presentation. Kruger (Bob Parker), an American Army commander, shows the dangers caused by nationalism. Despite protests from Isabel Goodman (Charlene Golonka), his son Herman (Tom Potosek), his secretary Paula (Pam Sabato), and Doctor Thompson (Dave Bordeaux), Kruger's mistaken sense of duty and cold stubbornness force him to sentence Anne Goodman (Anne Maddern) to be shot. He insists that she attempted to go against the will of her country in time of war to aid a youth movement which put love of God and humanity above patriotism. Miss Lee (Kathy Bonnette) and an army lieutenant (Alva Koch) encourage Kruger's actions. In an attempt to rescue Anne from the firing squad, Herman is killed. Thus Kruger is forced to pay for his mistakes.

SILENT NIGHT

This Christmas play by Ada Goepp depicted an average family during the hectic Christmas season. William (Stewart Faulkner) and Louise (Cindy Hardy) were exhausted after last minute shopping and gift-wrapping. They bickered over trivial matters. The Martin children, Barbara (Mitzie Koscis), Thomas (Mark Sweeney), Penny (Fay Jean Guy), and Jody (Chris Connelly) contributed to the tense atmosphere by arguing over ridiculous topics. The family had forgotten that Christmas means more than exchanging presents. This image vanished when, amidst the fighting and complaining, the family heard the voices of carollers in the distance. The family remembered the true meaning of Chistmas.

TURNERS FALLS HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY

A tree is planted by the waters. Its roots become firmly established. As the tree grows powerful, each branch becomes strong and sure. Finally the tree reaches the peak of its strength. Its branches spread proudly and reach toward the sky.

A class is formed near the waters, deeply influenced by its heritage. People, activities, and knowledge influence it. As the class earns recognition and prominence, its members become mature and certain. Finally, the class reaches its climax. Its members separate and strive toward the achievement of their individual goals.
